Villa Martinique Apartments come tumbling down

Repeated warnings by city inspectors about sewer leaks and sub-standard electrical circuits in three of the Villa Martinique's seven buildings went unheeded. Residents of the three buildings were informed on Aug. 30, 2006 that they were being evicted and had until Sep. 29 to move.

At the time of the evictions, resident Jinny Varr had lived in the Villa Martinique for six months. "This is crazy. You get used to an area and no matter how bad the world gets around you, it is still home," Ms. Varr said.

Later the Villa Martinique Apartments were later sold to developer Delbert McDougal, who plans to redevelop the property.

Early Monday morning a demolition crew began the work of razing the complex and clearing the land for new development. The demolition is expected to be completed within 60 days with the land cleared by the end of the year.

The long awaited demolition of the Villa Martinique Apartments begins on a sunny morning.

Voters go to the polls in an approving mood

Texas voters approved 16 constitutional amendments on Nov. 6. Statewide roughly 8.7% of the state's 12,587,501 registered voters participated in the election. In Dallas County, 11.82% of the 1,115,668 registered voters went to the polls.

Irving voters approved Irving's Proposition One, which raises the hotel tax rate to 15% from its current 13%. Allows a ticket tax of up to 10%. In addition, Proposition One allows a parking tax of up to $3 per vehicle for the Irving Convention Center and Entertainment Venue, which is currently under construction.

Irving voters also approved the Irving ISD Bond, which will allow for the issuance of $249,975,000 of bonds. Through the use of the bond money a new elementary and middle school will be built. Land will be acquired for a new early childhood school. Repairs and improvements will be made to existing IISD facilities. Almost 50,000,000 will go to technology, approximately 4,200,000 for fine arts equipment, and roughly 4,600,000 will go towards library books and materials.

Unique benefit memorializes friend

Sunday night Joe's Coffee Shop was jumping literally. Several patrons were forced to park across the street to approach the restaurant, which usually closes at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

A gospel band performed in the normally empty parking lot. As waitresses, cooks, and other staff members volunteered their time to feed the overflow crowd. Once inside, patrons shared tables and the festive spirit with strangers as they awaited their spaghetti dinners. In just three hours, the restaurant served 400 meals.

All of the meals, music and fun were designed to raise funds for Evelyn Segrest, a Joe's employee who suffered from cancer.

"The place was packed continually," Carol Wood, owner of Joe's Coffee Shop, said. "Everybody was upbeat and happy. Eventually, everybody got fed.

"We had a silent auction, raffle and door prizes. Many, many, many people contributed. We had inexperienced waitresses and waiters. We had waiters who had never waited on tables before. People were working the dish pan who had never worked the dish pan before.

"I was overwhelmed by the response. People in the community here are so supportive. We feel like when people need us, we are there for them; and when we need them, they are there for us. The people of Irving are very generous. When they all come together, it is a wonderful thing. We raised $10,000, and it was a celebration of Evelyn's life," she said.

After caring for her dying brother, Evelyn was unable to shoulder the burden of her own medical expenses.

"Evelyn had been an employee of ours for 11 years. She was a very loving and giving person. She became ill very quickly. Evelyn exhausted all of her savings while helping her brother through a cancer crisis. He passed away about 18 months ago.

"Evelyn opted out of our insurance plan, because it really was too expensive for her. We didn't want her to do that, but she had to make that decision. She was trying to build up some of her savings, and she never got to do that. She was diagnosed 10 weeks ago, and she was gone the night before the benefit," Ms. Wood said.

One of the most important elements necessary for people to survive a major catastrophe is the immediate response of agencies designed to offer aid and relief. Too many times, citizens have looked on as the lack of communications and the inability of various agencies to coordinate their efforts compound the tragedy rather than helping the victims.

In an effort to avoid miscommunications during a crisis, agencies from around the Metroplex sent their mobile command centers and staffs to participate in a catastrophe scenario at Texas Stadium on Nov. 6.

"Today we are communicating. It is called 'interoperability'

Summerville to Honor Our Veterans in a Landmark Event Saturday, November 10, 2007

Summerville At Irving Independent Living and Assisted Living to stage a special event honoring the twenty-six veterans who reside at the Summerville Community. Program activities will commence at noon in the Independent Living dining room. The American Flag will be presented followed by the invocation by Larry Danforth. The Star Spangled Banner will be performed by Jolie Stratton, soloist with the Dallas Opera and TAPS will be played by Aaron Montoya. Veterans will be introduced separately by name, rank, and branch of service and recognition of wars served. A special meal will be served following the introduction. A service medal presentation sponsored by Hillcrest Bank will begin during this special meal. After the ceremonies those able to gather around the flag pole will salute the flag while singing God Bless America with Ms. Stratton leading the charge.

To complete the day's events veterans will be transported to the Dallas/Fort Worth National Cemetery for a tour. This will take place at 2:30pm. Those interested are welcome to attend this day honoring all veterans and our men and women now serving in our armed forces.

For more information please call Shayron Scott, Activity Director at (972) 721-1500.

Former Irving student wins University of Oklahoma award

Provided by Meredith Bratton

Joseph Picca, University of Oklahoma (OU) meteorology senior, received the Outstanding Senior Award in the College of Atmospheric and Geographic Sciences for 2007-2008 based on his achievement in the areas of scholarship, honors, awards, leadership and service to the university and community.

Picca was honored during the Parents' Association Outstanding Senior Awards Reception and Ceremony on Nov. 9 in Oklahoma Memorial Union on the Norman campus.

Originally from Irving, Picca came to OU as a freshman and has been active in both on- and off-campus activities. He is the acting treasurer with Habitat for Humanity and volunteered at the National Weather Service in Fort Worth last summer. On campus, Picca was involved in the Oklahoma Weather Lab student-run forecasting, student newscast OU Nightly, the Honor Student Association and the OU student chapter of the American Meteorological Society.

While Picca was involved in many volunteer organizations, he also interned at both the Storm Prediction Center and the CBS news station in Dallas, furthering his main interest in operational meteorology. Picca said he hopes to continue studying operational meteorology and is planning to apply to graduate school at OU, Colorado State University, the University of Washington, Rutgers and Penn State. His first choice for graduate school is OU.

As the Outstanding Senior Award recipient, Picca will represent his classmates at the spring graduation convocation. He also will attend the university reception and presentation ceremony recognizing outstanding seniors from all OU degree-granting colleges. As a result of this honor, Picca will be awarded the Nichols Trailblazer Scholarship, traditionally granted to the outstanding senior in the college. Picca will receive a check for $500 at the fall convocation ceremony and a plaque in the spring.

"My most important advice is for people to get involved both on and off campus," Picca said.

Burglary: The Chevron at 1016 W. 183 was burglarized on 09-01-07. The pictured subject and two other males committed the offense. The others concealed their faces prior to entering the camera view. The 24-hour contact number for Irving PD is 972-721-2518.

her against her will, and put a knife to her throat. Later, suspect let complainant go, but took her five month old daughter. Suspect threatened to kill the child (not suspect's biological child) and left with the child. Complainant taken to Baylor Hospital for treatment of a possibly broken wrist. An officer followed up, but was not able to locate suspect or child.

Aggravated Robbery: 11-04-07 at 6:50 p.m. Complainant was in the parking lot of Meadowbrook Heights when he was approached from behind by a suspect who pointed a gun at him and demanded his wallet. The complainant relinquished his wallet. The suspect fled the location and was not located.

Theft from Person: 11-04-07 at 9:10 p.m. A male approached the complainant in the Apple Apartments and attempted to steal her purse by pulling it away from her. The purse straps broke and the suspect fled toward the front of the complex with the straps, leaving the purse in the possession of the complainant.

THE INTERNET IS THE BEST THING TO HAPPEN TO NEWSPAPERS SINCE THE PAPERBOY.

newspaper professionals have used the Internet to reinvent everything from newsgathering, to photography, to ad delivery. As a result, today's online and in-print editions are a multimedia partnership, combining the strengths of the Internet and the press to give readers a richer news experience.

During a typical week, newspapers reach 70% of all adults (Source: Media Market Research Inc.). Some of them read the print edition, some read the online edition, some read both. That's why newspapers' online and in-print combination could be the best thing to happen to your advertising program in a long time.

Mungles on Movies

By Matt Mungle
 Title: Lions for Lambs
 Rated: R

Films like Lions for Lambs make writing a review a slippery slope. If I praise the film, I am assumed to praise the message. If I slam it, I must be defiant to its cause. But that is not the case.

If I appreciate Silence of the Lambs, it does not mean I am on

Yes we are at war: Thanks for the reminder board with eating my neighbor's liver with some fava beans and a nice Chianti. Maybe I like it because of the writing and the superb acting. If I despise a film like Raido, it doesn't mean that I am against the advancement of the mentally challenged. It just means it was terribly hokey and manipulative in its sappiness. I could care less what your message is saying if you can't make a film worth watching. So now that we are clear, let us begin.

Lions for Lambs parades its actors across the credits like a military intimidation tactic. Redford, Cruise, Streep. The big guns. Redford not only acts in, but directs this story told within three stories. The plot revolves around a military maneuver taking place in the war against terror and how it affects the lives of different individuals. You see the main event unfold as the six central characters discuss, react and defend the war we are currently in. Janine Roth (Meryl Streep) is the seasoned news journalist discussing this exclusive new military strategy with a top senator (Tom Cruise). All the while, the event is being carried out by two young military men (Derek Luke and Michael Peña) fighting to better their country. A Political Science professor (Robert Redford) is discussing the cause and effects of our own personal actions with a talented student (Andrew Garfield) who is tired of the current politics. Each story line weaves the tapestry for the movie as a whole.

The writing is brilliant and brought to life flawlessly by its three main deliverers. Streep as always exceeds expectations. She can make the smallest movement in a scene become relevant and character developing. No attention to detail is left out and it is done so seamlessly that it is no longer acting but personified real life. She is not performing, but being. And it must be said that the writing does produce thought. You can't walk out of this film without thinking about where we are in our country. Agree or disagree with the message. But you will have to form an opinion regardless. The message becomes a character. You either love it or hate it. But you can't avoid it. You can't put it aside. You have to engage it.

What impressed me about this film too was the fact that it didn't take three hours to say what it had to say. It didn't try to impress me with a lot of pompous regurgitation like some know it all wind-bag who just won't shut up. It stood there, stated its case and sat back down. Many films could take a lesson in this. Writers and directors these days think that we should be honored to be in the presence of their feats of greatness for hours at a time. (My reviews excluded of course.) When in fact, we just want a good film. My thoughts, if you can't do it in 90 you probably can't do it in 120 either.

Lions for Lambs is rated R for some war violence and language. Again, if you want to see a well done film with superb acting then this is your baby. But if you can't check your political views at the box office, be ready to get emotional. Some will cheer its charge while others will snarl at its sensationalism. I admit I am becoming a little tired of the endless stream of political war pieces of late. I am well aware that we are in a crises, and I have the talking bobble heads on TV constantly reminding me of both sides. But again I am here to critique the film, not the war or those in control of it. Therefore, I give it 4.5 out of 5 stars and stripes. And God bless the USA.

Margaret's Corner

Hi Irving!
 I hope most of you are happy with the elections results. I am except for a few propositions. Time seems to pass so fast due to our busy lives so it's not too early to mark your calendar for the first day to vote. Feb.19th, 2008 marks the beginning of early voting for the March 4th, 2008 Primary Elections.

With 12 days of early voting, we should all have enough time to vote. I like what my Sunday school teacher says, "It does not matter, play or work, family or friends, quiet or noisy, fun or dull, hanging out or hanging in, fast or slow, good or bad...in the end I will make time for what I desire." I agree. We choose what we want to do.

In my recent Intercessors For America newsletter, they have an awesome article titled "Pilgrim Prayer and Fasting: A Model for Today" by Gary P. Bergel. It is compiled and adapted by Gary from Williams Bradford's "Of Plymouth Plantation 1620-1647". This book is now considered an American literature "classic". I think it is a good book to read during this Thanksgiving time. It is a great way to prepare our hearts for the thanksgiving season.

Sunday is Veterans Day. One way we can show our thanks and support for all our Veterans is to display our Flags on this special day. There will also be different Veterans Day events going on this weekend. If you would like to find out more about the schedule, call Porter's Army and Navy Store in Irving. And to all the Veterans: Thank you for all you have done to protect this great country. I admire your courage and conviction and pray you enjoy many blessings.

Keep reading The Irving Rambler, the newspaper Irving loves to read.

Praying to make a difference.
 Attend Church Sunday
 God Bless You

Las Colinas Medical Center expands Women's Services Unit

Provided by Nikki Mutschler
 Las Colinas Medical Center (LCMC) recently announced the expansion of its Women's Services floor - Labor & Deliver, Post-Partum, Newborn Nursery, & Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. Increasing deliveries have made this expansion necessary, as July was one of the hospital's strongest months ever.

The expansion includes the addition of ten more rooms, one of which will be a VIP suite, for post-partum mothers. All rooms are private and spacious. Each patient room will be approximately 300 square feet and the VIP suite approximately 700 square feet, giving families plenty of room to enjoy their new addition.

Wireless Internet access will be incorporated throughout the floor. The general rooms will be equipped with a glider for rocking the baby, as well as a sofa-sleeper for dad. The rooms will have wood flooring and will be decorated with a contemporary flair.

The VIP suite will include amenities such as a kitchenette, a large flat screen television in the general seating area, a private bed for the father, a private room for the mother with a separating glass door that can be closed off from the general suite, and an expanded bathroom with a spa-like atmosphere inclusive of a bidet.

An intermediate nursery will also be included in the expansion project. The intermediate nursery is designed for those infants who need a little more care than the newborn nursery or those babies who have been stabilized in the NICU and no longer require a higher level of care.

"The addition of the intermediate nursery will allow LCMC the opportunity to care for each babies' individual needs at any given time," Donna Butler, director of women's services, said.

Las Colinas Medical Center holds expectant and post-partum mothers dearly, and is committed to maintaining their comfort while providing excellent service.

"At Las Colinas Medical Center we know starting or adding to your family is a joyous occasion. In women's services we work as a family of care providers to make your special day one that is both comfortable and memorable," Ms. Butler said. "Come to LCMC for the 'Five Star' delivery experience you deserve."

Clinic provides vaccinations, educates pet owners

Sassy is ready to go home as Animal Control Officer Jim Owens and Senior Office Shelter Supervisor, Lisa Baker, inject her with vaccine.

By Jess Paniszczyn

Several area pets were disappointed to find out that their trip to the park involved receiving vaccinations.

Irving Animal Services hosted a rabies vaccination and microchip clinic on Nov. 3 at Running Bear Park. Dogs and cats received free vaccinations, and pet owners could purchase their pet an identification microchip for $10.

Qiana Cobb-Sinnie, the City of Irving veterinarian, educated pet owners about the need for consistent veterinary care.

"The event puts the Irving Animal Services in a positive light. There are a lot of negative connotations that are attached to shelters. We are here for the community to help in any way we can," Ms. Cobb-Sinnie said.

"This is an opportunity for people to learn how important it is for their pets to have vaccinations. Today we are giving dogs and cats their boosters. For dogs the vaccines are distemper, parvo, parainfluenza and hepatitis. Cats receive FVRCT. We are also offering rabies vaccinations to both cats and dogs.

"For a small fee, people can have their pets microchipped. Often when animals come into the shelter, we can tell that they are owned by someone, but they have no tags and no microchip. Sometimes these animals are euthanized, because we have no way of locating the owners. Microchipped pets can be returned to their owners quickly.

"We tried to target an area where people are less likely to take their animals to a vet. Some people just don't have the resources to take their pets to the vet. We are giving everyone a list of Irving area vets, so they can follow up with their pet care," she said.

As of last December, Ms. Cobb-Sinnie became the City's first veterinarian.

"I walked into a clean slate. It can be difficult to build from the ground up. But I can kind of tailor the operations to the way I want them. I am not coming into a position that has already been created to meet someone else's wants or needs. I am excited because I am like a trailblazer," she said.

J.D. Phillips, Evelyn's friend and co-worker helped plan the benefit.

"We fed over 400 people, and some people we didn't have food for. We had enough food for all the tickets and some extra. We served everything. There was nothing left," Ms. Phillips said.

"The benefit was a huge success. Everyone pitched in. It was a great memorial for Evelyn. Everybody loved her and that was shown through the benefit.

Evelyn was a loving, wonderful, warm hearted, fast talking woman. She was hardworking. She loved her job, her family and her friends," she said.

Leadership class explores community charities

Provided by Pam Brown

The Leadership Irving-Las Colinas Class of 2008 met Oct. 5 for their Community Involvement and Partnership Session.

Members began the day by bringing close to 100 pounds of food, toiletries, and paper products to be delivered to Irving Cares and Brighter Tomorrows/Transitional Housing. Along with bringing items from home, one of the class members connected with a large Irving corporation donated paper products and several others had their own companies participate in the donations.

Additional presentations during the day included Our Children's House, The Family Advocacy Center, the DFW Humane Center and Make A Wish. Serving lunch to the seniors at the Heritage Senior Center was rewarding to the class.

"This was a fantastic session," Chris Kratovil said. "I learned more about community organizations in Irving in one day than I had learned in three years of living here."

"It was so exciting and yet sometimes overwhelming to see the need in the community," Chandra Moore said. "This was a wonderful experience and I am anxious to get motivated in the community."

The class will meet once a month through April and will focus on a different area of the City and development at each meeting.

The Leadership Irving-Las Colinas Class of 2008 began their eight-month program early in September. The class will meet once a month through April, focusing on aspects of the City of Irving and Leadership Development.

Homeowners: Tips for Avoiding Financial Hardship

By Jason Alderman

America's once red-hot housing market has cooled off considerably. Prices are down, unsold housing inventory is up and mortgage lenders have tightened credit standards.

What's worse, many borrowers who opted for adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) are in for a big shock when millions of ARMs "adjust" to new, higher interest rates in the next few years. In a stronger market, these borrowers could simply refinance, using built-up home equity to qualify for lower, fixed-rate mortgages. Unfortunately, many now find themselves "upside down," owing more than their home's current value.

If you're in this situation, here are a few steps to consider before falling behind in your payments:

Carefully read your loan documents for terms that can make your interest rate rise or fall, such as:

When initial rate period ends, and when your rate is likely to start going up

Periodic rate cap (the most your interest rate can increase or decrease whenever your rate is readjusted - often annually)

Lifetime rate cap (the highest possible rate during your loan's life)

Index your rate is tied to (some indexes are more volatile, moving up and down more quickly)

If a balloon payment is ever owed Prepayment penalties, in case you're able to refinance

Rein in spending. Your monthly payment could suddenly go up hundreds of dollars, so if you're already struggling, cut expenses now. If you don't already have a budget, create one. Practical Money Skills for Life, a free personal financial management site sponsored by Visa USA, has numerous budgeting tools (www.practicalmoneyskills.com/budgeting).

Refinance to a fixed-rate mortgage, if possible. Well before your ARM readjusts, talk to your current lender and also shop around. With thousands of borrowers defaulting, lenders are more likely to negotiate if it means you'll stay a solvent, paying customer.

If you're in danger of missing payments or already have, contact your lender immediately and respond to all inquiries from them. It's better to work out a solution together than to let your options expire. Alternatives might include: Repayment plan. Talk to the loss mitigations department about how you might catch up. They'll likely want at least partial payment initially and your agreement to pay on time thereafter.

Forbearance. Lenders sometimes allow suspended payments for a few months, especially for disaster victims, or after job loss or family emergency. After the forbearance period ends, expect to pay extra each month until caught up. Loan modification. Where a lender agrees to modify loan terms with few or no fees. They might reduce the interest rate, convert to a fixed-rate mortgage, or possibly tack missed payments onto the end of the loan.

Short sale. Sometimes lenders allow owners to sell their homes for less than owed and write off the difference. The owner walks away with nothing except severely damaged credit.

Foreclosure. The lender takes possession of your home, you are evicted and your credit is severely damaged for at least seven years. Avoid foreclosure at all costs. The Federal Housing Administration offers comprehensive advice on avoiding foreclosure, including links to local housing counseling services, at www.fha.gov/foreclosure/index.cfm.

Talk to an attorney, financial advisor or housing counseling agency before taking any action and never make a payment to anyone other than your lender. Sadly, there are people who will take advantage of your bad circumstances.

Nobody wants you to lose your home, but you must take the initiative to find a solution before it's too late.

Scenario finds communications problems that is the key word," John Cabrales, Jr., City of Denton's public information and intergovernmental relations officer, said. "We have a simulated exercise in which a large aircraft has crashed into Texas Stadium during a Cowboys football game. You can imagine the amount of chaos and the number of casualties that would create.

"Immediately the City of Irving and Dallas County are going to be overwhelmed. Their resources are going to be taxed to the limit. So they will call in help from surrounding Metroplex communities. That is fine and dandy except that each city has different radio equipment and different ways of communicating. In order for them to be effective, they have to communicate. And in order to communicate, they must be able to talk to one another using the equipment they have.

"Several of these mobile command vehicles have equipment that allows different radio frequencies to communicate with one another. The equipment even has the ability to allow someone to patch in from a cellular phone or landline. So theoretically, you could be sitting in the City of Dallas' emergency operations center talking on a landline to someone from Frisco who is on a mobile phone and to the City of Irving Police Chief who is on a radio. You will all be able to communicate as long as you are going through one of these mobile command vehicles with that capability."

Through the day's activities, equipment and protocols were tested to determine if various agencies could communicate effectively during a crisis.

"We want confirm that we have the ability to communicate with all of the various entities out here. There are agencies out here that have old equipment and others that have cutting edge technology. So we want to make sure those agencies can communicate. If not, we will try and find out why. Is there an equipment issue or a training issue? Once we know what the issue is we can correct it.

"Today's exercise is funded through the Texas Environmental Extension Service (TEES), which is based out of Texas A&M. They fund this through grants they get from the State of Texas to make sure that the equipment that has been purchased with state or federal funds is doing what it is supposed to do," Mr. Cabrales said.

Patrick McMacken, the City of Irving's Emergency Management Coordinator, participated in managing the day's exercise.

"We don't have any victims. We don't have any fire trucks. About 35 agencies are involved today," Mr. McMacken said. "The primary function of this exercise is to test the interoperable communications capabilities of the north-central Texas region.

"We have here millions of dollars worth of high tech equipment. We are testing all of our public safety radios to work and interoperate with each other during a major disaster. The venue is Texas Stadium, because it is a good venue, it is big and it is all encompassing. It also has the scenario where you could have quite a few casualties, which would cause us to come together like this.

"Through this exercise, we are going to learn where our problems are. We are not looking for mistakes; that is not the issue. We are looking for technical issues, so we can correct them," he said.

MOMENTS IN TIME

The History Channel

On Nov. 10, 1775, the Continental Congress passes a resolution that creates the Continental Marines. The date is now observed as the birth date of the United States Marine Corps.

On Nov. 11, 1831, Nat Turner, the leader of a bloody slave revolt in Southampton County, Virginia, is hanged. Turner, a slave and educated minister, initiated a slave uprising in which 60 whites were killed during a two-day rampage. Turner's rebellion led to a new wave of oppressive legislation prohibiting the movement, assembly and education of slaves.

On Nov. 12, 1889, DeWitt Wallace, founder of Reader's Digest, is born in St. Paul, Minn. Wallace began in 1922 with a press run of 1,500 copies. By the end of the 20th century, Reader's Digest had the largest circulation of any publication in the world.

On Nov. 8, 1900, Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind," is born in Atlanta. Her tale of Scarlett O'Hara sold 1 million copies in its first six months in print, 8 million by the time Mitchell died in 1949, and at least 25 million more to date.

On Nov. 7, 1940, the Tacoma Narrows Bridge in Washington state, the third-longest suspension bridge in the world, suffers a spectacular collapse. Most experts agree the collapse was related to resonance, a phenomenon that also comes into play when a soprano shatters a glass with her voice.

On Nov. 9, 1970, in a 6-3 vote, the Supreme Court refuses to hear a challenge by the state of Massachusetts regarding the constitutionality of the Vietnam War. Massachusetts wanted to bring a suit in federal court that would allow state residents to refuse military service in an undeclared war.

On Nov. 13, 1982, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the long-awaited V-shaped black-granite wall inscribed with the names of the 57,939 Americans who died in the Vietnam War, is dedicated in Washington. It soon became one of the most visited memorials in the nation's capital.

He was known as "Doodle" to those people who knew him when he attended and graduated from Petrolia High School. He was known as Ken or Kenneth by his wife, Mary Lou and to those who knew him when he attended and graduated from North Texas State College (now University of North Texas) with B.A. and M.S. degrees. He met Mary Lou when they were in the 8th grade. They shared a marriage of 57 years.

During the 2 years he was in the U.S. Army, stationed at Ft. Sam Houston, in the Surgical Research Unit, he was addressed as Pvt. and Cpl. DuBois. He was known as Dr. DuBois to his colleagues and patients when he established a medical practice in Irving in Family Medicine after having graduated from University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in 1961. He was originally in a solo practice but in 1970 he joined with the Medical and Surgical Clinic of Irving where he remained until his retirement in 1995.

He was known as "Dad" or "Pop" to his children: Kenneth G. DuBois, II and wife, Connie; David S. DuBois and his wife, Donna; and Yvonne R. Hill and her husband, Beaux. He was known as "Roro" to his grandchildren: Matt DuBois, Trey DuBois, Cassie DuBois, Brandon DuBois, Chase Townley, Taylor Townley.

And most affectionately, he was known as "Doc" to his church family and various other friends.

FRANCES NATALIE BARKER PLUME

2/17/25 - 11/01/07. Born in Iago, TX, she had a thirst for knowledge and an adventurous spirit. She moved to Irving in 1974 and operated a local household cleaning business and a wood working business. In her 60's, she joined the Peace Corps and served in Jamaica, briefly in Guatemala and Western Samoa. She traveled to Paraguay, Europe, Mali and Nepal. Upon returning to Irving, she was a volunteer with the Irving Public Library. Frances was a character and an epitome of a Texas woman.

She is survived and missed by her daughter, Catherine Plume.

Frances lived her life well. Her favorite epitaph was "By and large, I had a good time"...and so she did.

NASCAR driver supports children with learning differences

David and Lauren Zweig help Jamie McMurray (rt front) hold the ceremonial check as Robin, Ida Ann (second row) Louis and Harold Zweig (third row) look on.

Provided by Diana DuBois

NASCAR NEXTEL Cup Series driver Jamie McMurray extended his lead in the support for children with learning differences by generously contributing to the Gladys Golman/Faye Dallen Education Fund (GGFDEF).

A $5,000 check was presented by McMurray at Texas Motor Speedway on behalf of the Jamie McMurray Foundation (JMF), to Louis and Robin Zweig, co-founders of the GGFDEF, and their two children Lauren and David. McMurray will also donate one of his fire suits, which will be auctioned off in support of the fund.

The Gladys Golman/Faye Dallen Education Fund was created by Louis, a Senior Vice President with Glazer's Distributors, and his wife Robin when they were faced with the challenge that their son David, who has Asperger's Syndrome, might not be able to become a Bar Mitzvah. The Zweig's discovered that there was a glaring need in Dallas to train and educate the city's religious-school teachers to enable children with learning differences to be successful in their classrooms.

"The need in the Dallas community for religious-school teachers to be trained and educated for children with learning differences was greater than I ever imagined," said Zweig. "We had to do more than just contribute to our own congregation. This is a citywide issue that will only grow in scope without securing the resources, raising awareness, and providing the training and skills that our teachers and our children deserve."

Firefighters honored at annual ball

Provided by Monica Ellington

The Irving Firefighters' Ball hosted at the Four Seasons Resort and Club on Oct. 28 is a signature event of Irving. Only two years old, the ball creates a unique atmosphere in which investors, residents, public officials, children and heroes all meet for one night under a banner of respect and honor.

Born of the vision of Christina Gears and Mayor Herbert Gears, the ball honors the men whose lives are at stake every day they show for work.

Dozens of sponsors answered the sirens call and arrived to a standing room only crowd the night of the event. Through sponsorships and auction the Irving Firefighters' Ball raised over $460,000 this year, benefiting the Irving Fire Foundation Scholarship Program.

Following dinner by Chef Christof Syre, State Representative Linda Harper-Brown introduced the 2007 scholarship winners to the crowd. The chosen students excel in their studies as members of the National Honor Society, step up as leaders, and participate in community service. A standing ovation was given to the following students:

Chandra Klassen daughter of "Bob" Klassen who is studying at El Centro College.

Jonathan Hall the son of Darrell and Sandy Hall and a student at the University of Texas.

Jared Hindman the son of Brian and Beth Hindman who attends classes at Texas A&M.

Texas A&M student Sarah Spencer, the daughter of Scott and Susan Spencer.

Kara Harris the daughter of Steve and Tanya Erick who is attending Newberry College in South Carolina.

Stacy Spagnola the daughter of Jeff and Kathy Spagnola who is attending the University of North Texas and her sister Lisa Spagnola who is a student at the Texas Woman's University. Jessica Curbo at Sam Houston University and the daughter of Duane and Kathryn Curbo. Thomas Keetch III the son of Thomas "Bill" Keetch at Tarrant County College.

And David "Nicolas" Morgan of LeTourneau University and the son of David and Jana Morgan.

The highlight of the evening, however, was listening to the tales of the men who serve the city of Irving including:

Firefighter of the Year, Firefighter David Jennings, for embodying what it means to be a firefighter.

Officer of the Year, Captain Jerry Kirby, for 25 years on the Irving Fire Department.

Five Lifesaving Awards were presented for acts of bravery to the following firefighters:

Lieutenant Ken "Kruzer"

Kruszynski with Engine 2-C Shift. Firefighter David Jennings with Engine 5-A Shift.

Captain "Bobby" Willingham Truck 2-A Shift.

Captain Kenneth Boozer Engine 5-A Shift.

And Firefighter Josh Nicholes Engine 5-A Shift.

In addition to their award, each won a leather recliner for their Station compliments of The Dump.

Captain Riddle and Firefighter Lancaster with Engine 6 both won the Medal of Valor for their pursuit to fight fire despite injuries and received as a gift from Southwest Airlines round trip tickets for themselves and a guest.

Gene "Shakey" Holder presented an award to Captain Larry Erwin of Truck 7 for lifelong service to the citizens of Irving.

The Irving Firefighters' Ball committee thanks all those involved from the sponsors, to our volunteers, to the men of the Irving Fire Department whose character and pride in what they do ignites within each of us a civic pride and respect for them.

Traditional music brings guests to their feet during the second annual Irving Firefighters' Ball.
