Happy 4th of July early
Lilia Gans, marketing coordinator for Coppell, said, "They enjoy the festive atmosphere, and they're able to get around in a safe contained area. We have police, parks and recreation, police academy, firefighters, arts center, library, youth sports associations, and the citizens group represented. "It is a party in the park. We have games, a fireworks show and live music, so it is a different vibe for everybody. It is a community atmosphere, that carnival atmosphere, that feeling of coming together with your neighbors, spending time with your family. This is definitely one of the biggest two or three out of fourteen events of the year." While some families walked around the park, others settled in to relax and enjoy the music. People brought canopies, lawn chairs, snacks, and even their dogs to the event. Because the celebration was contained in the park, many children were able to visit the inflatables, rock climbing area, and trampolines while their parents chatted with friends. The city rented large fan misting stations, so people could have some reprieve from the heat. The fireworks show was orchestrated specifically for this event by Pyrotec.
